LATEST PHOTOGRAPHS FROM THE SCENE OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT

The photograph here shown is the first ever taken of the interior of Longwy. Bottom picture is of Belgian soldiers firing 700 shots a minute into the German lines. The photograph was taken during the operations in Flanders.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT TRYING TO CHECK DISEASE IN CATTLE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The agricultural department was advised today that 65 new cases of foot and mouth disease have been discovered among the fancy breeding cattle exhibited recently at the national dairy show and are now under quarantine in the Chicago stock yards.

Thirty-four cases among the pedigreed herd was reported several days ago. Another case was reported from Erie county, New York.

The agricultural department is doing its utmost to check the spread of the disease. Experts of the department fear the quarantine will have to be extended to shipments of poultry.

Dr. John Mohler, chief pathologist of the bureau of animal industry, issued a statement that it was possible but not probable that poultry will catch the disease, but they might be active agents in communicating the disease from infected to healthy livestock.

Secretary Houston and chief Charles Brand of the new bureau of markets said they had not had time yet to consider the effect of infection on meat prices. Government officials insisted the increase in meat prices were unwarranted. Storage supplies of meat they said, hadn't been curtailed and experts think that livestock slaughtered should increase rather than decrease as a result of the epidemic. Impelling growers to send their stock to market to avoid infection.
